HELLO, I'M VALERIE AITOVA

Over the past few years, I've written for magazines and media platforms in both the UK and Russia, covering fashion, beauty, internet culture, branding, identity, and the aesthetics shaping Gen Z today.

I work across features, interviews, and editorial storytelling, covering fashion, beauty, culture, and digital aesthetics while interviewing designers, founders, and creatives from across the industry.

As a Gen Z writer who is online most of the time, I've always been fascinated by the relationship between fashion and identity, how media, pop culture, and digital spaces shape the way we see ourselves. I grew up watching The Devil Wears Prada long before I understood the industry itself. Now, writing about fashion, beauty, and culture feels a little like turning those early obsessions into a career (not just for Carrie Bradshaw, but for me too).

I'm especially interested in contemporary fashion media, luxury branding, beauty culture, internet aesthetics, and the cultural shifts that happen before they become trends.
